Figure 1 consists of two side-by-side histograms. The left histogram is labeled 'train' and the right is labeled 'test'. Both histograms show the frequency of matrices with a certain number of non-zero elements. The x-axis represents the number of non-zero elements, ranging from 0 to 100,000. The y-axis represents the frequency, ranging from 0 to 100. Both histograms show a high frequency of matrices with 0 non-zero elements, with a long tail extending to 100,000 non-zero elements.

Figure 1 consists of three graphs, (a), (b), and (c), each plotting the rate of reaction (y-axis) against temperature in degrees Celsius (x-axis). The x-axis for all graphs ranges from 0 to 60°C with major ticks every 10 units. Graph (a) shows a curve that remains near zero until approximately 30°C, then rises sharply, passing through points like (40, 10), (50, 100), and (60, 1000). Graph (b) shows a curve that starts rising from 0°C, passing through points like (20, 10), (40, 100), and (60, 1000). Graph (c) shows a nearly straight line starting from the origin and passing through points like (20, 10), (40, 100), and (60, 1000).

A black and white photograph of a vintage movie poster for the film "Casablanca". The poster features the title "Casablanca" in a large, stylized font at the top. Below the title, there is a central image of a man and a woman, likely the main characters, in a romantic pose. The poster also includes the names of the lead actors, Humphrey Bogart and Ingrid Bergman, and the director, Michael Curtiz. The overall design is classic and evocative of the film noir genre.
